Preface

Effective with the 1980-81 adoption, the California State Board of Education no longer adopts supplementary instructional materials. However, the established "out-of-cycle" legal compliance review process continues to provide school districts with more options in terms of materials that are available for purchase with the Instructional Materials Fund (IMF). Such materials, including non-adopted basic programs and some computer software, are presented in this edition of Instructional Materials Approved for Legal Compliance.

School districts may use up to 20 percent of their IMF allocation to purchase materials from this list. Up to 100 percent of a district's IMF may be used to obtain nonadopted basic programs on this list by petitioning the State Board of Education for approval. The petition process is described in the 1986 edition of the Instructional Materials Ordering Manual.

All materials on this list meet the state's legal compliance requirements. This means that the materials have been reviewed by a state Legal Compliance Committee (LCC) using the social content requirements of the Education Code concerning the depiction of males and females, ethnic groups, older persons, disabled persons, and other areas that ensure materials are responsive to specified social concerns.

The materials on this list have not been reviewed for educational content. School districts are encouraged to review the materials carefully before making a purchase.

In October of 1985, the Office of Curriculum Framework and Textbook Development distributed a second edition which was an addendum to the previous 1984 edition. This 1987 edition of Instructional Materials Approved for Legal Compliance is a consolidation of the two previous lists and contains additional instructional materials approved since their publication dates.

The Office of Curriculum Framework and Textbook Development is committed to working with school districts to improve the overall quality of textbooks and instructional materials and to facilitate the selection process. Please contact Glen Thomas, Director, Office of Curriculum Framework and Textbook Development, P.O. Box 944272, Sacramento, CA 94244-2720, if you have suggestions for how this might be accomplished.

Specific questions about the contents of this list may be directed to the Office of Curriculum Framework and Textbook Development (phone 916-323-2607).
